Up close...

While most of us are still asleep, Clayton starts his day with an early morning gym session but not before he has a strong espresso first!

With over 17 years experience in the sheet metal industry, Bridgeman's Operations Manager, Clayton Weideman, brings a wealth of knowledge to the team.

An experienced and successful Senior Manager with proven capabilities and clear management strategies, Clayton's previous experience encompasses projects for a range of infrastructure and government agencies. Past projects include long-term contracts for the largest rail manufacturer in South Africa and major businesses such as Alstom, Bombardier, CRRC, Gunnebo, G45, Ingersoll Rand, Wabtec and BFG.

Having started his career in sheet metal on the floor, he believes this has given him a great understanding of how parts, assemblies and complete products come together.

Leading by example, Clayton prides himself on being measured and fair and trusts his experienced team to do the job.

He encourages a cohesive work environment and firmly believes that the best teams are those that work with you and not for you.

He admires the Senior Management team and their dedication and passion for making a positive change in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and underprivileged people's lives. He is motivated by how the Bridgeman team are actively changing the way the industry does business.

Clayton's ultimate goal is to develop and implement efficient, effective systems and procedures and practices that ensure not only success for Bridgeman but success for its customers too.

"Seeing the successful results of all the hard work that goes into the planning and execution of activities carried out by my team that ensures operations run as effectively and efficiently as possible, gives me the most satisfaction."
